R. Australian Navy WWII Medal Trio Book & Ephemera – HMAS Patricia Cam Survivor

http://www.auctiva.com/hostedimages/showimage.aspx?gid=803884&ppid=1122&image=909370747&images=909370590,909370586,909370597,909370601,909370603,909370611,909370613,909370616,909370621,909370628,909370635,909370651,909370659,909370667,909370686,909370697,909370705,909370717,909370729,909370737,909370742,909370747,909370757,909370577&formats=0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0,0&format=0
TRYING TO BE SAILORS

John Leggoe

 Makeshift and obsolete ships of the Royal Australian Navy, and the amateur sailors who manned them, were part of the screen between the victorious Japanese and the Australian mainland in the dark days of 1942. Desperately short of ships, arms and other equipment, the navy was forced to press into service anything that would float. Secrecy and stealth were the only factors going for these often weird, lumbering craft, with little or no offensive capacity, in their sorties into enemy waters north of the Australian continent and around New Guinea.

Sometimes their luck ran out and the enemy blows were swift and terrible.

Gradually, a new fleet of small ships — frigates, corvettes and Fairmile from Australian shipyards — began to replace the makeshift ships of 1942. In them the amateur sailors fought bravely from Hinchinbrook Island to the Solomons.
ships — frigates, corvettes and Fair-miles from Australian shipyards — began to replace the makeshift ships of 1942. In them the amateur sailors rang the Pacific, from Hobart to Tokyo, escorting convoys, handling submarines, landing and evacuating troops, carrying out secret missions, bombarding Japanese positions and sweeping mines.

From all walks of life, these sailors served in all capacities. Their training was sketchy and they learnt the hard way — in operations at sea. What they lacked in training, though, they made up for in resource and initiative and their methods were often original.

Because of the special nature of their service, a unique relationship developed among them, still cherished today.
Sinking of Armidale and related operations in the Timor Sea between 1 and 13 December 1942.
Soker Williams's profession in civil life was cooking, so now that our food supplies were relatively plentiful we invited him to demonstrate his culinary art. He had no utensils, but that was overcome by burning the rubber lining out of my tin hat which then made a satisfactory basin and stewpan. Williams's creations with the limited resources available to him were quite remarkable and greatly appreciated by Levett in particular. Later the same tin hat was used to bathe feet cut by the sharp shells on the beach.

At night around the camp fire the lads were in high spirits. Some cleaned of their fuel oil and looking quite debonair, joined with the Wessel Island boys in a fireside dance. Durrington, Brun, Murray and White soon picked up the unprofessed steps the natives taught them.
This is a group of three Australian WWII medals issued to Stoker G. W. Williams W 1897. It comprises 1939-45 Star, 1939-45 Australia Service Medal and 1938-1945 British War Medal.
George Williams served between 25th November 1940 until 22nd May 1946.

There is a Royal Australian Navy National Archive File available. The file advises:

WILLIAMS GEORGE WILLIAM
Service Number - W1897
Date of birth - 30 Oct 1922
Place of birth - MELBOURNE VIC
Place of enlistment - WILLIAMSTOWN
Next of Kin - BETTY

Here is the files link:

sReports/ItemDetail.aspx?Barcode=4522812&isAv=N

The medal trio comes with 3 original photos of George Williams and a copy of “Trying To Be Sailors” by John Leggoe. The book tells the story of a bunch of amateur sailors being thrown in at the deep end and blundering around the Timor Sea, learning as they go - a good read! It has 2 references to Stoker Williams.

George Williams served in the Timor Sea of the South Pacific Theatre on board RMAS Patricia Cam; a wooden hulled tuna boat that was converted to a storage cum mine laying vessel based in Darwin. HMAS Patricia Cam was sunk during an action on 21st January 1943 having been bombed by “Floatplane Joe”. There is a thrilling personal account in John Leggoe’s book mentioning George Williams and a group photo of the doomed vessel’s survivors. The family advise that George was forced to abandon ship on no less than three occasions!

A really great piece of Australian WWII Naval history.

The medal's condition: The 1939-47 Star is missing its suspender ring; the WWII service medals are in VF to EF condition. Each award is officially impressed stamped.

The lot comes with a ribbon bar for a 1939-45 Star and Pacific Star. There is no Pacific Star included though no doubt Stoker was entitled to this campaign star.
The book and ephemera are in very good condition. Page 87 has Stoker Williams’s name underlined. The survivor’s photo appears on page 91.

Overall weight: 625gm

GOT A QUESTION?

Please read on.....

If we haven't answered it below then be sure to check out the "Find answers from Scrimshaw01" page - click on "Ask a question" at the bottom of this page. It will answer your FAQ's far quicker than you can type a message and wait for a response from us - thats why it's there!

Do you accept 'Buy it Now' offers?

In fairness to all interested buyers we DO NOT accept BIN offers or end auctions early. We will let the auction run its course and the buyers to decide the final price. Good Luck Bidding!!

Do you combine items for postage?

Absolutely YES!

Where possible we'll do our best to save you some $$$!

However, please note some items are just too big and some too fragile to be sent combined.

Can I pick up?

Short answer.... NO!

Long answer.....Co-ordinating pick ups is just too time consuming for the amount of buyers we have each week, plus we're too busy running around sourcing all the great stock for you! Rest assured our "packing elves" handle/pack all items with great care to ensure all items arrive as described. Check our feedback if you still need convincing!

How much is postage?

Click on the "postage and Payment" tab above to calculate postage to your area.

NB: All items are sent by Australia Post (domestic & international) + Registered/signature on delivery + a packing/materials cost of $3 ($5 for extra large items).

Why does the ebay app show FREE postage on most listings but my computer shows a postage fee?

Because ebay is still working on a MAJOR gliche in their system!!

Please note if you are viewing this listing via the ebay app then we DO NOT support the Free postage that the ebay app displays - this is a fault with ebay - please view the listing on a computer for all terms and conditions including postage costs to your area. We will not warrant the FREE postage and if you insist we will just cancel the transaction and ask you to contact ebay to complain - sorry you've been warned!

Important stuff for our international buyers!

All international parcels are sent by Australia Post Standard International & Express International for parcels over 2kgs.

For international buyers all legal custom paperwork will declare the full purchase price of the item. Please do not ask us to declare a lesser value to that of the purchase price.

Buyers are responsible for all custom/duty taxes costs.

Payment Terms

Paypal or Direct deposit for Australian Buyers. NO CHEQUES will be accepted. Paypal is the only option for Buyers outside Australia.

Good Luck Bidding!